

Kenneth Bruce

29

Kenneth is the Senior Pastor of Westwood Church in Alabaster, Alabama, where he leads over 2,000 people every week. Kenneth shares about growing up in a loving family and how he, today, is taking what he was given by his parents and passing that love along to his wife and children. This interview is jam-packed with some of our favorite stories to date. He tells the story of how his worship of self and soccer led to him losing everything he felt was important as a young man. After he had a wreck one night that should have killed him because he wasn't wearing a seatbelt, his dad took him to a hospital emergency room and waited for an accident victim to arrive so he could teach him a lesson. It didn't take long and a mangled body came into the ER from not wearing a seatbelt. Kenneth tells another story about his dad, giving up the dream job of being the Public Address Announcer for the University of Kentucky's basketball and football games so he could attend Kenneth's high school soccer games. Kenneth is the father of five children, three of whom he chose through adoption. He pastors a large church and coaches three of his children's soccer teams but still makes time to sit down with his family for a daily dinner. This interview is packed with good parenting advice from a guy who is in the middle of raising a large family.
